Artist Statement

I am passionate about art, enjoy the act of creation, and hope to help people who view my artwork appreciate the beauty already around them. Too many people stumble through life without enjoying nature. Art is a form of communication and what you say is as important as how you say it. I am an optimist at heart and I choose to use my art to talk about beauty. Since nature provides the inspiration for art, I enjoy painting en plein air so that I can be out in nature and incorporate all the senses into my paintings and better communicate an experience of the place. When I paint from photographs, I am able to incorporate all the information I have observed from direct experience about color and light into my paintings. My portraits are informed by the thousands of life drawings I have done.

Contemporary Realist Christopher Reid studied fine art at Savannah College of Art and Design, a world-renowned art school in the US. He trained in all media, but currently favors pastel, acrylic, watercolor, and charcoal. His style varies based on the medium and what best suits the subject. You will see from his portfolio that he enjoys, and is capable of painting just about anything! His technical mastery is second to none and it is rare to see an artist as versatile. He is often invited to exhibit and teach in countries all over the world, and his work can be found in private collections in Australia, Germany, England and the United States, to name a few.

In addition to creating stunning works of art, he tirelessly gives back to the community in his home country of South Africa by voluntarily running the IWSSA (International Watercolor Society of South Africa), frequently donating artwork to be auctioned off for charitable causes, and teaching workshops on various art subjects.

On his days off, he can be found working in the garden, giving his cat Moose belly rubs, or whipping up something special in the kitchen with his wife, Kim.
